Pulau (Malay for “island”) Perhentian, Redang, Tenggol, Tioman, Aur and Chebah... islands rarely heard of or read about but waiting for us in the South China Sea off the east coast of Malaysia. Pristine diving with much small animal life and large pelagics- a combination seldom found in such abundance together.

Fantasea Divers with their ‘built for divers’ boat, The Ocean Rover, transits these six Malaysian archipelagos over the course of 10 days and 9 nights covering 550 nautical miles. Travel between the islands is done at night so precious dive time is not lost.

Sailing out of Kuantan, Malaysia, the Ocean Rover cruises north to the first stop at Perhentian.

Turtle Rock and the pinnacles entice us back underwater before heading for Tenggol, the landing site of many Vietnamese refugees in the 70’s and 80’s before being relocated. Dive sites abound in clear warm waters. Day 6 brings us to the Kuantan Wreck and all the animals that call it home.

Diving is but one of numerous adventures that can be experienced along the south-bound journey. Perhentian offers a rainforest hike on the morning of day 2. Redang invites you to visit an island village or perhaps mangrove kayaking.
